Police officers on duty in Andover Square will now be in direct contact with the station house. A $700 two-way portable radio has been purchased for use by patrolmen working in the square, checking meters and on night foot patrols.

John E. Powers, Massachusetts Supreme Court Clerk and former resident of the state senate, will speak at the 77th annual corporate communion breakfast of Council 1078, Knights of Columbus Sunday at Briarcliff.

Town employees who use their car for official business will now be paid mileage at the rate of 10 cents per mile instead of eight cents as previously. This figure is to cover all expenses. Under the old agreement employees were reimbursed for the difference between insurance fees for personal and business use of their cars.

C. Stanley Rich of Andover, assistant vice president and general sales manager of American Policyholders' Insurance Co., has been appointed to the newly created position of marketing manager in the home office of that company in Wakefield, effective April 1.

Teachers Will Hold Off On Contract Negotiations

The Andover Teachers Assn. will hold off for the time being any attempt to negotiate a contract with the Andover School Committee under terms of the new state bargaining law for municipal employees.

President James Murphy said Tuesday his organization will continue to function under the terms of a professional recognition agreement signed by the teachers' group and the policy board last year.

Murphy was queried by the TOWNSMAN about local contract plans after an announcement was released by the Massachusetts Teachers Assn. reporting that 4,500 Commonwealth teachers will be represented by local affiliates of the association as a result of bargaining recognitions gained in the first two months of operation of the new bargaining law for public employees.

The high school mathematics instructor said the Andover affiliate of the state organization has decided to postpone any contract action until decisions on court cases now pending clear up the question of how inclusive representation can be.

This issue was raised here in February when Town Counsel Frederic S. O'Brien advised the School Committee that in his legal opinion principals, assistant principals, directors and department heads function as executive officers of the school department and as such cannot be part of the same bargaining unit that represents employees whom they supervise. He did not rule out the possibility that administrators can

Accentuate The Positive

May 6 will be the anniversary of the founding of Andover and for the second year the town will honor its municipal employees at a special Founders' Day observance.

In the spirit of this occasion, the TOWNSMAN will throw open the letters to the editor column in its May 5 issue for communications that Accentuate the Positive things about Andover, its municipal services, functions elected officials and employees.

If you are proud of Andover's schools or the work of the tree department or the level of police and fire protection maintained or the caliber of personnel manning the many Town Hall offices . . . or anything else that reflects positively upon this community, let's hear about it. If you know of an official or a town employee who deserves special recognition, here is your opportunity to see that he gets it.

For one week we will dispense with criticism.

Because we hope for and expect a flood of response, we ask that you start your letters coming now for publication on May 5.

Joint Meet Is Refused

Failing to win approval from the Board of Selectmen for a joint meeting to discuss "The Hill" at the new high school site, the School Committee will instead talk the matter over April 26 with the Building Committee or a representative from that group.

The selectmen have agreed to listen, but not to participate in what School Chairman Louis Galbiati describes as a review of the situation relative to the ledge at

Andover Journalist Conference Speaker

John H. Fenton of Andover, New York Times correspondent for the New England area and author of a best-selling biography about Richard Cardinal Cushing, will be the keynote speaker for the 13th New England Publications Conference at Merrimack College Saturday.

Five hundred students and faculty members representing 30 high schools in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine will participate in the conference.

Among them will be four staffers from Andover High School's Mosaic. Leading the local delegation will be Editor Anne Moss. Others attending will be Andrew Caffrey, Linda Gilmore and Susan Dimlich as well as Mrs. Sandra Hawks, faculty advisor.

The primary purpose of the one-day conference is to enable students and faculty moderators to achieve a better understanding of the functions of their high school newspapers, yearbooks and literary magazines.

The agenda includes special student and faculty conferences by staff members of the College's three publications and graphic art demonstrations by Sister Frances Ines, S.S.J. and Sister Mary Trinita, I.H.M., both of Pennsylv-

Housebreaks Are Plaguing Local Police

Confronted with a growing list of spring housebreaks to investigate, Police Chief David Nicoll said this week that the public must cooperate with his department if such crimes are to be brought under control.

Frequently people recall when questioned following a break that they have seen suspicious persons, vehicles or events at about the time a theft is known to have been at work, the chief said. But, he added, they rarely think to telephone a tip to the police.

Nicoll's comments came as a follow up to the news that four new housebreaks were reported in Andover within three days. This brings the total for April breaks to seven. Eight breaks and one attempt were reported in March.

Two women reported Tuesday, within 15 minutes of one another, that their homes had been entered.

Margaret Sweeney, 32 Chestnut St. told police at 12:15 p.m. that her apartment was entered sometime after 10:45 a.m. and a fur piece and 50 cents taken. Shortly afterward Agnes McDonald, 23 Hidden Rd., told officers she discovered her house had been broken into when the family returned from a five-day trip. A checkbook was known to be missing.

On Saturday police investigated breaks at the residences of Rosario DiGiovanni, 12 Moreland Ave., and Anne Harnedy, 24 Summer St.

DiGiovanni called at 10:30 p.m. to report that his house was entered while he was at a wake.

the high school course. He told the board in a letter last week that his committee wants "to ensure that the contemplated course of action is in the best interest of Andover."

The School Building Committee announced its determination some months ago to leave the hill intact, largely because the expense of removing it has been estimated at some $65,000. The builders reaffirmed this position as recently as last week, according to Town Manager Richard Bowen.

In his letter to the selectmen, Dr. Galbiati told the board the request for the joint meeting was being made to them instead of the building committee because they "are the elected body having the ultimate responsibility (through the town manager and his building committee) according to the Town Charter."

William Stewart, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, made it clear Monday, however, that he considers the ledge issue the responsibility of the building committee.

to sit in on a discussion of the ledge and "listen," Stewart said at a meeting of his board: "I don't know what they expect to get from us."

He pointed out that any request for removal of the ledge would mean scheduling of a special town meeting which could not be arranged without approval of the Finance Committee. Furthermore, said Stewart, if the selectmen did not agree that removal of the ledge should be reconsidered, the School Committee would have to circulate a petition in order to force scheduling of a special meeting.

During Monday's discussion, former board chairman Philip K. Allen took objection to one paragraph in Galbiati's letter which he said inferred that the Building Committee had not given adequate consideration to the ledge question. Pointing out that he knew it had been thoroughly reviewed and discussed publicly at Town Meeting, Allen said he thought the inference was "offensive" to which Chairman Stewart added the comment: "I don't like the gist of this letter, I can tell you that."

Manager Richard Bowen told the selectmen that the scheduling of a town meeting now could lead to as much as a four month delay in construction, particularly if it were decided that the ledge should come out now. Since the contract for the building has been let, the manager said a delay in the work could also lead to complications with the contractor.

Further consideration of plans for the ledge was proposed by William A. Doherty at last week's meeting of the School Committee. His request that a joint meeting be arranged with the selectmen was opposed by Robert Sherman and Virginia H. Cole.

Doherty said he feels the area occupied by the hill will be needed later for parking and that blasting to remove the ledge after construction of the school could endanger the building.

Bowen said Monday, however, that he doubts the ledge is any closer to the site for the new school than it is to the present high school. He contended that with the use of steel nets it would be possible to blast at some later date without damage to either building if the town eventually felt it was necessary.

He also pointed out that it would be possible to add parking space at the new school without touching the ledge area. Because the site is roomy, he said one way of managing it would be to convert a playfield near the building to parking and relocate the physical education area further to the rear of the available land.

The March issue of The Crescendo, official publication of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs Inc., was dedicated to Andover's J. Everett Collins, director of the Andover Male Choir.

In a dedication article, The Crescendo reports that the Andover Square & Compass Club was born on Christmas Eve, 1927 when an informal group clustered around a piano to sing holiday carols. The voices so well that they scheduled regular meetings and selected Collins to lead them in singing classical and other selections written for male voices in four parts.

By 1933, the newsletter reports, the demand for their services and the increase in number of singers brought about a reorganization of the Andover Male Choir.

Three of the charter members are still active in the club: Collins, Fred E. Cheever and James F. Christie, all Honorary Life Members of the New England Federation.

Youth Center

The Andover Youth Center's annual art exhibit will be held Saturday and Sunday, April 16 and 17, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the upper parish hall at Free Church.

Oil paintings and sketches produced by amateur artists aged five to 75 will be displayed. The class of eleven adults and 45 children work under the leadership of Dorothy Piercy at the center, for which Donald Dunn is director.

The exhibit is being presented in connection with the final day of activities in connection with the Free Church Talent Dollar Program.

Selectman Sidney P. White said Wednesday that he does not intend to take direct action to force Town Meeting reconsideration of the site selected for the new central fire station, but he indicated that he will see that the subject is thoroughly rehearsed.

White opposed location of the station on Stevens Street at the March Town Meeting where the site was approved by voters as part of authorization for construction of the new fire facility.

His continued opposition has been rumored over the intervening weeks and became public knowledge Thursday when he spoke out at a two-man selectmen's conference.

Selectmen Robert A. White and Roger Collins, both of whom are hospitalized missed this week's session and Monday's regular meeting. Phillip K. Allen had a previous commitment.)

At this meeting, the whole subject of locating municipal facilities was tossed in the air.

More than a month ago the selectmen received a report from Architect Archibald MacLaren upon which they had stated they would make a final decision about location of a new town office building. Debates about where to locate this facility have been going on for more than a year.

MacLaren evaluated three sites: the old Shaw property, or the present municipal parking lot; land on Shaw'sheen Road; and about-to-be acquired Shorten garage property on Park St. He told the board that of the three sites, he viewed the Park Street location as the one which presented the most exciting possibilities for development of a new town hall center. He considered the potential of the entire block as it could be developed when the central fire station is relocated.

Instead of coming to an immediate decision, however, the board agreed to give the public a month's time to react to the report.

No further action has been taken. Now a fourth site has been tossed into the basket . . . the area occupied by the Musgrove Building in Elm Square. Selectman White sees it as a choice spot for location of a combined fire and police station; Manager Richard Bowen believes the area is more ideally suited to a municipal office building complex.

Bowen came to the Selectmen's meeting Monday with diagrams of the Musgrove area, post office avenue (a private street) and back land that could be added to the Musgrove block. Using scale miniatures representing the square footage considered necessary for a fire station and a town hall, he proved to his satisfaction that the land area is not suitable for a fire station but could be adequate for a town office building.

Board Indecisive On Sites

(A Townsman News Feature)

Selectman Sidney P. White said Wednesday that he does not intend to take direct action to force Town Board reconsideration of the site selected for the new central fire station, but he indicated that he will see that the subject is thoroughly rehearsed.

White opposed location of the station on Stevens Street at the March Town Meeting where the site was approved by voters as part of authorization for construction of the new fire facility.

His continued opposition has been rumored over the intervening weeks and became public knowledge Thursday when he spoke out at a two-man selectmen's conference.

(Selectmen Robert A. Maclaren and Roger Collins, both of whom are hospitalized missed this session and Monday's regular meeting. Philip K. Allen had a previous commitment.)

At this meeting, the whole subject of locating municipal facilities was tossed in the air.

More than a month ago the selectmen received a report from Architect Archibald MacLaren upon which they had stated they would make a final decision about location of a new town office building.

Debates about where to locate this facility have been going on for more than a year.

Maclaren evaluated three sites: the old Shaw property, or the present municipal parking lot; land that is part of the high school parcel on Shawsheen Road; and the about-to-be acquired Shorten garage property on Park St. He told the board that of the three sites, he viewed the Park Street location as the one which presented the most exciting possibilities for development of a new town hall center. He considered the potential of the entire block as it could be developed when the central fire station is relocated.

Instead of coming to an immediate decision, however, the board agreed to give the public a month's time to react to the report.

No further action has been taken. Now a fourth site has been tossed into the basket... the area occupied by the Musgrove Building in Elm Square. Selectman White sees it as a choice spot for location of a combined fire and police station. Manager Richard Bowen believes the area is more ideally suited to a municipal office building complex.

Bowen came to the Selectmen's meeting Monday with diagrams of the Musgrove area, post office avenue (a private street) and back land that could be added to the Musgrove block. Using scale miniatures representing the square footage considered necessary for a fire station and a town hall, he proved to his satisfaction that the land area is not suitable for a fire station but could be adequate for a town office building.

Another site mentioned by White was a possibility for a fire-police station is the partially-demolished Tyler Rubber warehouse property on Main Street, owned by Contractor C. Lincoln Giles. Giles announced some months ago that he would use the shell of the brick building in development of an apartment complex, but work on the project has not yet begun.

Both this location and the Elm Square site are known to be favored by a number of firefighters who have voiced their disapproval of Chief Henry Hilton's endorsement of the Stevens Street location. Their objections to the off-Main Street acreage is reportedly based in part on their feeling that it would prove difficult to get heavy equipment in and out of that spot, located at the bottom of a hill, particularly in bad weather.

The Stevens Street location was initially considered as part of urban renewal plans and has the blessing of not only Chief Hilton but the New England Fire Underwriters Assn.

Apart from the question of where a fire station should be situated, Selectman White is interested in a searching discussion of what savings and conveniences might be realized if it were combined with a police station.

Site costs are also going to be a subject for continued debate. Officials are already admitting privately that owners of the Stevens Street land have put a stiff price on the property. Upwards of $100,000 has been mentioned.

And though assessments on the parcels that would be part of an Elm Square location do not run much in excess of this figure, up-town commercial property is known to be considerably undervalued.

It promises to be a long discussion.

Early Tryouts Help League

(Another in a series of articles on Andover Little League.)

The Andover Little League annually gets the jump on many another league by scheduling tryouts and organization sessions in March when it is still frequently too damp and too chilly for baseball.

These pre-season warm ups are possible because Phillips Academy permits the league to use its Cage for indoor registration and tryouts three weekends in March. Because the teams get this headstart, all but the senior division teams complete the regular season play prior to the Fourth of July. These early playing dates assure each team of maximum strength for the season as most vacation periods do not start until the first week of July.

The March tryouts are held for the purpose of making up minor league teams and restaffing major league teams that are short of players. Boys who are not on major league teams are grouped by age (9, 10, 11, 12) in order to maintain competition between like ages. As a result a nine year old boy is not competing against older boys for a chance to go into the major leagues, but he is competing with other nine year olds. As in professional baseball, the boys with the most experience and playing ability are selected for major league teams first.

Once the major league teams are restaffed, all other registrants are assigned to minor league teams. Here again the league strives to achieve balance by equalizing the number of boys on each team within specific age brackets. Most major league players are 11 and 12, but the rules require that each major team have at least two boys who are nine and or ten.

The early indoor tryouts put a lot of pressure on operating personnel and directors of the Little League program. A total of 25-30 hours is spent at the Cage by coaches, managers and league officers who supervise the first days of tryouts. Much of this time is devoted to practice for boys who are already on major league teams and the rest is given to teaching boys the proper way to throw, catch and bat.

During these practice sessions major league managers decide which boys they will try to snare during rotational turns at the annual draft which is held several days after the final tryout.

Boys between the ages of nine and 12 who have not yet registered for Little League and wish to do so may contact Daniel Isenberg, 14 Smithshire Estates.

Massachusetts Cancer Crusade. The younger Pellegrino is state chairman of the food specialties division of the crusade.

His son reports that the elder Pellegrino is a ruthless crusader against smoking and finds common cause with the Cancer Society's long standing war on cigarette smoking.

"The old man hates the smell of tobacco," says Joe Jr. After the Surgeon General's report linking cigarette smoking and lung cancer came out in 1964, he issued a memorandum to all the employees of the company urging them to abandon the habit.

Many dignitaries will be among the five hundred or so guests expected at the testimonial to be held at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston, April 21. These will include from the political world Rhode Island Senator John Pastore and Governor John A. Volpe; prominent food chain executives including Sidney Raab of Stop Shop, Gordon Bloom of Elm Farm and Stephen Mugar of Star Market; the Italian Ambassador to the United States and the Italian Consul in Boston. Among those from Lowell will be Homer Bourgeois, Mayor Edward Early and George DeMoulas.

Pellegrino Testimonial To Benefit Cancer Fund

The prominent Lowell-Andover businessman who built the once faltering Prince Macaroni Co. into a multi-million dollar enterprise will be honored at a testimonial dinner in Boston April 21.

The instigator of the affair honoring Joseph Pellegrino of Andover, president of the Prince firm, is Joseph F. Pellegrino Jr. Proceeds from the $25 a plate dinner will be given the 1966

Board Denies Town Request

As anticipated, the Zoning Board of Appeals has issued a decision requiring the Town of Andover to observe 40-foot setback regulations in siting its West Andover fire station at the corner of Greenwood and Chandler Roads.

Actually, the decision was after the fact. Because it was expected, site plans for the station had already been reworked and preparations made for observing setback stipulations.

The town requested permission to locate the station closer to the lot line primarily because it was felt that safety factors were involved, according to Manager Richard Bowen. The requested location would have made the station and trucks rushing from it more readily visible to motorists in the opinion of the manager and the fire chief.

The zoning board, however, took the position that neither public convenience nor public safety would be in any way better served by granting the town a setback variance.

The decision was signed by Chairman Alfred W. Fuller, Augustine P. Sheehy and Raymond S. LaRosa.

Team Teaching Well Surveyed

The committee organized by Supt. Edward L. Erickson to study team teaching and non-graded schools in nearing completion of its school Committee assignment.

In recent weeks the educators and laymen who make up the group have visited schools using team teaching techniques, met for discussions and listened to outside reports.

The sub-committee studying elementary education has visited the Estabrook School in Lexington, a school designed for team teaching with a program developed in cooperation with Harvard University.

The full committee recently met with Richard Hildreth, head of the social studies department at Melrose High School, to hear a report on team teaching in that school.

Food Consultant Discusses Health

Dr. Lawrence S. Spiegel, 76 Holt Rd., was a featured speaker at the annual Health Education Conference held at the University of Rhode Island April 6. The conference, sponsored by the Rhode Island Association of Sanitarians, was concerned with current aspects of public health problems. Dr. Spiegel spoke of the relationship between public health purposes and the nature of the modern food manufacture and distribution. A food product consultant and editor of several technical journals, he was a 1957 graduate of MIT.

Making A

(A Townsman News Feature)
In less than a year an Andover High School gym teacher and her husband put together a championship girls' gym team, and that takes concentration... a concentration of effort and time and will.

And it is precisely because Ruth Fairfield found 10 girls at Andover High who could be inspired to concentrate on perfection that Andover produced a winning team in its first year of female gym competition. This is Coach Fairfield's own evaluation of what makes her champions click.

Andover never had a gym program for girls until last year and never had a gym team until November a year ago. Ruth Fairfield and her husband Philip, also a physical education instructor at AHS, began with roster of 15 and worked that down to a team of 10 this year.

The girls have met every school day from 2:15 to 3:30 p.m. and every day during vacations for two hours or so of intensive drill. Five of them came out of this rigorous training equipped for competition in the state meet and it was these girls — a senior, one junior and three sophomores — who walked off with top honors.

What makes this undefeated team so strong? The fact that they take real pride in their work and this pride is so strong that the girls are forever intent on what they are doing, even in com-

Migrant Worker Is New Perman

The migrant worker is becoming migratory! So reports the state department of public health.
There he once came to Massachusetts as an agricultural worker on our scattered farms during the growing and harvesting seasons only, he is often now settling in cities, sending for his family and planning to stay. The so-called migrant is thus becoming a permanent or "in-migrant" who must be assimilated into our population and economy.

In Massachusetts 85 percent of the 5,000 migrants are Puerto Ricans, the rest being mostly Mexicans and Southern Negroes. At the present time there are at least 100,000 Puerto Rican families living in single housing development in Boston. There are growing numbers also settling permanently in other cities such as Springfield, Providence and New Bedford.
Smaller cities like Framingham and towns like Woburn also have small populations now.

Dr. Leon Sternfeld, first deputy commissioner of public health, is project director of the State
Migrant Health Program, a project designed to assist migratory workers and their families in achieving better health. The program is subsidized by a grant from the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is being administered by the Massachusetts Health Research Institute Inc. in cooperation with state public health officials, local boards of health and physicians.
Cooperating with the program are the Migrant Ministry of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, with which Rev. J. Allyn Bradford of the Church is active, and the Migrant Education Project of the Commonwealth Service Corps.

The project provides a basic health program of communicable disease control, public health nursing services, environmental sanitation and health education.
Presently the bulk of its work is carried out on farms and in the cities, using nurses, sanitarians and health educators as staff.

The Puerto Ricans are citizens of the United States and many of the Cubans who have emigrated

Migrant Worker Settling As New Permanent Citizen

The migrant worker is becoming migratory! So reports the state department of public health. There he once came to Massachusetts as an agricultural worker on our scattered farms during the growing and harvesting seasons. Now, he is often now settling in Andover, sending for his family and planning to stay. The so-called "migrant" is thus becoming a permanent or "in-migrant" who must be assimilated into our population and economy.

In Massachusetts 85 percent of the 5,000 migrants are Puerto Ricans, the rest being mostly Cubans and Southern Negroes. At the present time there are at least 100 Puerto Rican families living in single housing development in Andover. There are growing numbers also settling permanently in other cities such as Springfield, Worcester and New Bedford. Smaller cities like Framingham and towns like Woburn also have small populations now.

Dr. Leon Sternfeld, first deputy commissioner of public health, is project director of the State Migrant Health Program, a project designed to assist migratory workers and their families in achieving better health. The program is subsidized by a grant from the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is being administered by the Massachusetts Health Research Institute Inc. in cooperation with state public health officials, local health and physicians. Cooperating with the program are the Migrant Ministry of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, with which Rev. J. Allyn Bradford of the Church is active, and the Migrant Education Project of the Commonwealth Service Corps.

The project provides a basic health program of communicable disease control, public health nursing services, environmental sanitation and health education. Presently the bulk of its work is carried out on farms and in the fields, using nurses, sanitarians and health educators as staff.

The Puerto Ricans are citizens of the United States and many of the Cubans who have emigrated since the Castro regime took over in Cuba, have been granted special work visas. All migratory agricultural workers are protected by the Massachusetts Sanitary Code which establishes standards for proper health and sanitary facilities. Because Spanish is the native tongue of most of these workers, it has been necessary to instruct and assist in their health education by using both English and Spanish languages. Spanish-speaking doctors, dentists, sanitarians, nurse and health educators are assigned to the Project.

This program is vitally important for two reasons: First, because farmers and in fact, other employers of unskilled labor, want and need help, especially since a law was passed last year which essentially bars foreign labor in this country, except in fields where a shortage of workers is proved to exist. Second, and equally important, these laborers, willing to work and trying to help themselves, need the protection and guidance that this program provides, to help them settle into decent living and working arrangements.

Most of the workers and their families are trying to exist on incomes that fall far below $3,000 a year. Indeed, many families exist on less than $2,000. Unfortunately there are few other job opportunities for the agricultural worker after the farming season ends. Presently there is no standard minimum wage set and the migrant workers, in many cases, without benefit of any health or unemployment insurance. However, these inequalities are expected to be corrected in new legislation being proposed this year.

Whenever you see a person writhing in pain, you reach for an analgesic. When an individual is wringing his hands, he probably is a candidate for a tranquilizer. When someone has a strained wrist, you recommend a wristband.

Note that all the italicized words in the above paragraph start with the letters "wr". Most English words beginning with these 2 letters are of Teutonic origin, and they generally convey the sense of twisting.

Thus, the writhing patient is twisting his body . . . the patient wringing her hands is also moving them in a twisting motion . . . and the wrist is usually used to twist the hands.

New Goodies at Andover CO-OP

Proudly presiding over her world of sugar 'n spice 'n everything nice is the charming girl known to Andover consumers as Candy Ermer.

Why does she look as pleased as punch? For two compelling reasons. 1. She has five (5) brand-new cases in which to display her wares. 2. She is mistress of the widest and most exciting assortment of baked goods for miles and miles around.

If you ask her, she will tell you that her display will bring adventure back to eating. And if you are concerned over the cost of such adventure to your girth, a look at Candy will banish your fears.

Baked by European artists, our baked goods are something to detour if you want to avoid temptation, because both Candy and her goodies are sure to enchant you.

Tower, Signs Are Approved

In recent decisions the Zoning Board of Appeals cleared the way for construction of an AT&T telephone exchange tower and service building on Wood Hill and for two signs requested by Allied Chemical Co. whose new warehousing operation is open on Dascomb Road.

Approved was a special permit for the tower and a variance from single residence C frontage and setback requirements for the telephone company. The board stated that since construction of the station at the precise location requested by AT&T is regarded as a "public convenience and necessity" by the Federal Communications Commission it is likely the Department of Public Utilities would overrule the Andover board if it refused the permit and variance.

A permit for construction of a $125,000 reinforced concrete building to house electronic equipment at the site has already been issued.

An easement over the former town property is to be retained by Andover as access to a water tower located on the same hill. The variance given Allied Chemical Co. will permit the firm to erect two six by fourteen foot signs in a V shape at a location fronting on Route 93.

Other decisions:
• Doyle Lumber Co. Inc. has been given a variance to permit interior alterations to a storage area at 63 Chandler Road.

• George J. Colantino has been denied a variance which would have permitted construction of an additional or 13th apartment in the former Pike School building at 5 Porter Rd. In refusing the variance, the board said that Colantino had without its approval divided the larger apartment of an adjoining annex into two apartments. A variance permitting 12 apartments at the location was granted in 1963.

• The board denied George H. Belanger, 66 North St., the right to continued use of a trailer on his property. A permit was given the previous owner for use of a trailer but that decision specifically stated that subsequent owners or leasees would have to re-petition.

In its decision, the board stated that in its opinion continued use of a trailer on the North Street property would be in derogation of the intent and purpose of the zoning bylaw and detrimental to the surrounding neighborhood.

• Denied was the petition of Daniel Frishman, 14 Castle Heights Rd., for a variance to permit construction of an in-law apartment. As a result of a previous decision, Frishman already has permission to build a second unit on the property.

Crusaders In Playoff

St. Augustine's Crusaders participated in the recent final playoffs of the Central Catholic Grammar School Basketball League.

In the Division E-F Tournament St. Augustine's team lost a close one to the St. Joseph Kangeroos of Lawrence by a score of 31-22. Barrett of St. Augustine's led his team with 8 points.

As E-F tournament runners-up, the Crusaders will receive silver medals at the annual sports banquet to be held at Central Catholic Auditorium, Lawrence, April 27 at 6:30 p.m.

NEWS CAPSULES

Issued by the State Division of Motorboats to boaters in Massachusetts to help them prepare for the 1966 boating season, Wilton Vaughn, state director, said that division enforcement agents presently are visiting marinas and boat yards to check registration numbers. Where deficiencies exist, a green courtesy tag is left on the boat listing the fault. "The courtesy tag is not a summons or an official violation notice," Vaughn said. "It merely notes errors on a boat's registration and reminds the owner to make corrections before putting his vessel overboard."

• George Meacham of East Longmeadow, Mass. is to be director of the YWCA Camp Lawrence for the fourth consecutive year. He will be assisted by Jack McCarthy as program director.

• The executive board of the Andover Teachers Assn. has named association president James A. Murphy liaison official to deal with the School Committee. The group, in the throws of administrative reorganization, said it would later want to name liaison representatives to represent the association in specific areas i.e. salaries, professional rights and responsibilities etc.

• Andover Institute tested 145 students last week for 12 full-tuition scholarships to be awarded in the fields of secretarial sciences, business administration and data processing. Charles Liponis, president, will announce the names of winners April 25.

• A seven-year-old boy is held responsible for lighting the match that started a Saturday fire at the barn of Stig Larson, 125 Bailey Rd. When he reported the blaze to his mother, she told him to douse it with water while she called the fire department. This quick action kept the flames from spreading.

• Irving G. Berman, professor of community organization at Syracuse University, will be the key speaker at the annual Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce dinner April 28 at Sheraton Rolling Green Motor Inn. His subject: "Creative Localism."

• Andover Junior High School students will participate in a physical education exhibition tonight from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the school auditorium.

• Manager Richard Bowen has been told by the selectmen that he is to proceed with a taking of the Picos land on Shawsheen Road, adjacent to the high school property. Town Meeting voted $2,500 for purchase of the small area some months ago, but negotiations have proved fruitless. The out-of-town owner has been asking a price more than double that offered.

• In an executive session Monday, the selectmen discussed with the manager progress made in negotiations for school sites in West and Southeast Andover. Manager Bowen was authorized to put owners on notice that if negotiated settlements cannot be reached, the town will proceed

• Fifteen eleventh grade students from the Phillips Exeter Academy will spend their spring term working in Congressional offices in Washington, D. C. The boys are part of a program which will test whether practical experience can effectively reinforce classroom work and, at the same time, give a boy stronger and more long-range personal objectives.

• The name of Helen West, 70 Morton St., has been drawn for jury duty at Salem Superior Court on May 2.

• Ground was broken April 6 at Merrimack College for a new $2 million library. The building, which will take 22 months to complete, will be faced with white limestone and glass and supported on four sides by concrete columns. It will eventually house 250,000 volumes of books, periodicals and monographs and will have individual seating for over 800 students.

• The 1965 Christmas Seal Campaign has officially closed. Total contributions reached an all time high of $84,631.00, a slight $231.00 increase over last year. In spite of this increase, 14 of our 31 communities failed to reach their 1964 figure. Andover gave $4,737.30 up $235.95.

Nurses Meet On April 20

Massachusetts Nurses Assn., district four is concerned about maintaining adequate standards of nursing care for Essex County, when many nurses who are registered and qualified to nurse are unemployed or choose to work in other fields.

The membership committee for the district, as an initial step toward improving the situation, sent a questionnaire to the membership eliciting an expression of nurses' needs. Plans were then formulated to improve communications between all nurses and their professional organization.

A huge rally of nurses is to be held at Beverly High School Auditorium, Beverly on Wednesday, April 20, at 8 p.m.

At this event, short talks will be given by Mrs. Ruth Hurley, president of MNA; Dr. Richard LeBel, chairman of the department of psychology at Salem State College; Mrs. Alice Y. Conlon, associate executive director of

Spend Wisely

The waters of Fish Brook are trapped. We have cheated the Merrimack of what will most surely be enough water to raise the level of Haggett's Pond to the maximum before the dry season. It gives us a sense of well being just knowing that spring's wealth of water is flowing at our command.

The danger now is that this feeling of satisfaction will lull us into a false sense of security.

Andover water restrictions may be lifted later in the season. Officials seem certain that they can be. But this does not mean the drought is over nor that we can all drift into lavish, thoughtless use of nature's most precious commodity without risking later consequences.

From Washington comes word that there is no significant relief in sight for the Northeast and that, for the fifth consecutive summer, experts are advising prudent municipalities to conserve, conserve, conserve.

It is important that we continue to take the town's water restrictions seriously so long as they are in force. It is equally important that we develop habits of conservation that will keep us perpetually aware of the need to spend water as judiciously as the cautious Yankee spends cash.

Friendly Persuader

The new water rates may somewhat forcefully persuade Andover homeowners to embrace the cause of water conservation. They will mean about a 30 percent annual increase in water fees for most families, according to the town manager's calculations.

For the first time, the town's residents will begin to have some idea of what it costs to provide clean, dependable water for a community of this size. Until now, a major portion of the expense has been hidden in the annual budget and taxes collected from big and little water users alike have paid the deficit.

Like growing up, it may hurt a little. But it makes sense to put the water department, a municipally operated utility, on a self sustaining basis.

About The Dogs

The vigor with which voters shouted down a Town Meeting article which would have required dog owners to supervise their canine's comings and goings makes it abundantly clear that they are not interested in any measure that would force the en masse restraining of household pets.

But this does not mean it is a dead issue. There are increasing numbers of people, some of them responsible dog owners, who are concerned and annoyed by the total freedom some residents give their animals.

On the one hand there is concern over the nuisance dogs make of themselves at various elementary schools where they are both an annoyance and a safety hazard. (This latter contention is borne out by the fact that there were 94 cases of dog bite reported in Andover last year, admittedly a decrease from the all-time 1964 high of 122, but nevertheless an awesome total.)

And elsewhere, improperly cared for pets plague neighbors with yowling, scrapping, the mutilation of flowers and shrubs and the littering of trash.

At last count there were 1,787 licensed dogs in Andover and an undetermined number of strays. We cannot afford the citified luxury of a full-time dog officer, and that is what it would take to enforce any legal restriction on canine freedom.

But neither can we ignore the rights of people who do not choose to own pets nor to share responsibility for those of others. The matter now rests in the hands of the dog owners.

If they are to preserve and/or improve their image, they must train their pets to mind their manners . . . or mind their own by keeping the dogs at home.

What Our Readers Say

Fairy Story

To the Editor of the Townsman:
The more we learn about the operation of our school department, the more it seems like a page out of Alice in Wonderland. Latest intelligence is that teacher evaluation is going on all the time. So far, so good. But the unbelievable net result of all this activity is a big fat zero, so far as the town is concerned, because every teacher is passed with high-flying colors. Such a whitewash looks like a case of fixing grades to promote fraternity and equality within a mutual protective society.

The reason why the colors fly high for the teachers is that we are compelled to pay premium salaries to them all, regardless whether they are giving premium performance or not.

We are also paying our administrators to perform real teacher evaluation. If they can't or won't do it in the public interest, the only solution lies in finding administrators who can and will. Until this ridiculous situation is drastically improved, we are tolerating a practice which should shock the conscience of the community.

Dino G. Valz
17 Stratford Rd.

Future Prudence

To the Editor of the Townsman:
The Townsman of March 31 reports that there is still discussion of why the new high school is of high cost. However, to obtain the information that shall encourage prudence in the future, the following is suggested:

The selectmen ought to have composed an analysis of all that part of the new high school which is properly chargeable to future expansion. That would then reveal the cost, in terms of per pupil, what the actual usable portion of the school is. In this day of easy, detailed accounting we cannot accept the excuse that it would cost too much to obtain the information. Indeed, the Committee should have, long ago, known it; how else could they make a reliable decision?

The information so obtained should then be a proper part of the Selectmen's annual report for 1966. And of equal importance, the information should be again placed before the voters when expansion is asked for in the new high school.

It is a puzzle why the administration grasps every opportunity to trade upon the good will of efficient business management, yet is unable to discipline itself to meet the simpler limitations imposed upon good business management one of whose rules is that the information of today must be known, analyzed and published so that it can be useful for tomorrow and ten years from tomorrow.

Down the Years with The Townsman

75 Years Ago — April, 1891

Brainard Cummings has staked out the land in Barnard's Court for the addition to the Barnard's Block. Mr. Cummings will do the wood work and M. E. White the brick work.

This remedy (Electric Bitters) is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. It will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt-rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as cure all malarial fevers.

Twenty-six special Lawrence policemen did duty Monday night in that city while the regulars were dancing at City Hall, but there was only one drunk registered at the station.

50 Years Ago — April, 1916

By the death of Mr. John Alden, Andover has lost one of its most useful and trusted citizens, but only a few of our people were aware of his eminent position in the world of practical science. For nearly 38 years he had been chief chemist for the Pacific Mills in Lawrence and he had won a place among the first experts in the country in industrial chemistry . . . among his personal traits there stand forth in the thoughts of those who knew him best his quiet strength of mind and character, his unceasing industry, patience and enthusiasm in his chosen profession, his rare modesty and reticence, his sterling integrity and high mindedness and his deep kindness of heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McLaren of Essex Street are rejoicing over the birth of a son last Sunday.

Miss Florence Greenwood has been spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Greenwood.

At a recent meeting of the Ballardvale Congregational Church, Amos B. Loomer was elected deacon to succeed the late Thomas Matthews, who had for a number of years served the church so faithfully and acceptably.

Give-aways & Notable Books

National Library Week, April 17-23 is the time to go to your library to see the new books and special displays. There are book-marks with this year's theme "Keep growing - read" for all borrowers.

The adult department will display the Notable Books of 1965 selected by the Notable Book Council of the American Library Association. These are the books which in the judgment of the Council made an outstanding contribution to literature and general knowledge during the past year. Lists of the Notables are available at the main desk and at Ballardvale branch. Quantities are limited, however, so it would be well to keep the list for future reading reference.

In addition, a collection of career pamphlets has been arranged on the give-away table in the upstairs lobby for those who are intrigued about librarianship. According to Mrs. K. C. Vint, assistant librarian the give-away booklets tell what may be expected from a library career as well as what it takes to be a librarian. See "Future Unlimited," or "The lively career of a school librarian," "Be an Army librarian" (the largest library program in the world) "What it takes to be a librarian," and a reprint from Esquire magazine "Young man, be a librarian!"

STANDARD CLIPPINGS BAG. TORO pioneered grass and leaf bagging attachments for rotary mowers in the first place, and this year they're even better. This standard equipment bag clamps on with one hand, and it has a heavy-duty bottom. No zippers to clog, either.

SAFETY SPIN START. You wind up the "impulse" starter, step behind the mower handle, for safety, and push the lever to "start" position. Chokes automatically.

THREE OR 3½ HP. FOUR-CYCLE ENGINE. Starts easily, runs smoother than cheap 2-cycle engines. No mixing of gas and oil.

MAGNESIUM HOUSING. The lighter-than-aluminum stuff they use in airplanes.

AUTO-OILER. A visual oil filler. Push the button and you're sure the crankcase is full. No plug, no funnels, no oily fingers.

CLEAN-OUT PORT. When you're through mowing, let the engine idle and run a little water into the clean-out port. The blade splashes it all around under the housing and washes it out like new.

TRIMIT. You know that grass along the sidewalk that won't stand up? This little device props it up so the blade can clip it off crisply.

WIND-TUNNEL HOUSING. TORO's "S" shaped cutting blade actually creates a powerful suction under the housing. It pulls grass up for a more even cut, "vacuums" leaves, too.

New children's books and gay bookmarks will be found in the children's room.

A special booklist has been prepared by Mrs. John Wrigley of the new books for young adults. The new titles and the lists both are available in the YA corner of the main reading room. The lobby display is also featuring books for the teen ager with the theme "Know what you're talking about - read." The variety of subjects young adults want to know about is reflected in books in the display. Amazing.

Ballardvale branch is observing National Library week with new book displays. According to Mrs. Martha MacCausland, reserves will be taken during the week and the books will start to circulate on April 25th. Bookmarks and lists of the Notable Books of 1965 are free at the branch.

If at the branch or the main library, you do not find the Notable Book you want, please ask a librarian. Miss Miriam Putnam, librarian, remarked that during the year most of the titles were acquired by Memorial Hall Library as they were published. The remainder were ordered so that the library has all 14 fiction titles and the 37 non-fiction. You can put in a reserve for any not on the shelf when you are looking. At the main library the Notables are being displayed on top of the catalog during National Library Week. Thereafter they will become part of the browsing collection.

Staff Travels

Mrs. Ross Eldridge is back after a week with her husband on a combined business and pleasure trip to Aruba and Curacao. There she was much impressed with the free telephone service to anywhere on the island and by the converted sea-water which is the usual source for water there. (It tasted good.) Mrs. Kenneth Vint spent her vacation week with her husband in New York where they attended ballet and theater. A tour of the magnificent Library of the Performing Arts was on the agenda. This week Mrs. Constance Smyth of the reference department is enjoying a few days of vacation.

Medieval Castle
A castle, all silver and gleaming battlements is currently on display in the Children's room. Five members of Boy Scout pack 76, den 4 were the architects and builders: Weld Butler, Daniel Lynch, Patrick Marasco, Tom Marshall, and Thomas Whittaker. Suggested reading which completes the exhibit includes THE STORY OF KING ARTHUR AND HIS KNIGHTS; MEN OF IRON; THE CASTLE BOOK; THE FIRST BOOK OF MEDIEVAL MEN.

New Books Arrive

A pace of new books has speeded up thanks to the grant of $12,000 for the purchase of additional reference material to strengthen the library in its regional role. Watch the reference collection grow!

Other new arrivals for the circulating collection include recreational and informational reading.

The course will concentrate on developing skills in reading, writing, vocabulary, and directed study. Classes will be held to 15 students or less, and each student will be given special counseling and individual diagnosis. At the conclusion of the six-week period, each pupil will receive a program report with suggestions and recommendations from the faculty.

TEACHERS

bargain as a separate unit within the teachers' association.

Because of uncertainty over just how this and other aspects of the new law will be interpreted, Murphy said the issue will be reconsidered by a new group of association officers to be elected in June.

The Massachusetts Teachers Assn. said Wednesday that to date MTA agreements under the law cover 11.1% of the state's 40,684 public school teachers.

MTA Field Operations Director Francis J. White Jr. said affiliates of his organization, representing professional association viewpoints, are expected to win representation for most of the state's teachers. He indicated that competition for representation rights has been indicated in some communities, but that in most areas MTA affiliates are the lone contenders.

The new state law, signed last November, requires school committees to bargain collectively with their teachers. The MTA has a membership of more than 35,000.

While in most of the 20 communities, contracts are still being negotiated, White revealed that the Quincy Teachers Assn., representing a system with a 665-member teaching staff, has signed a contract with its school committee. The Quincy contract names the teachers association as representative for all teachers, and for all administrators with the exception of the superintendent and his three assistants.

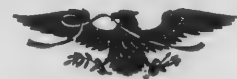

Largest of the cities represented in the list is Worcester, where the Education Association of Worcester has gained recognition rights for the more than 1,250 teachers in the system. The EAW is the MTA's largest affiliate.

Among the communities listed as having designated associations as bargaining agents are: Abington, Adams, Beverly, Braintree, Cohasset, Fitchburg, Greenfield, Hilyoke, Hull, Leominster, Millbury, Nantucket, Northridge, Norwood, Quincy, Scituate, Tahanto Regional School District (Berlin-Boylston), West Brookfield, Williamstown and Worcester.

MTA officials said that while MTA affiliates represent 4,505 teachers under the new requirements, the number is probably larger since most agreements also include various administrative personnel.

The State Labor Relations Commission is considering petitions for representative elections in several communities where there are conflicts. Election dates are expected to be announced shortly.

HOUSEBREAKS

Police, who were headed in that direction to investigate a suspicious car, theorize that the thief had a radio and was alerted to their movements. Bundles of items, including some cash, were found collected on the floor ready for loading and the owner said he was passed by a speeding car as he made his way home.

At the Harnedy residence, the thief entered through a cellar window and left with $400 in cash.

Police Chief Nicoll pointed out that neighboring communities are experiencing the same sort of breaking and entering activity, much of it carried on in broad daylight.

Asking citizens to be on the alert, the chief said, "We don't care how many dry runs we make. We just want people to let us know when they see something going on that they think is out of order."

Hearing later about strangers seen carrying boxes from a neighbor's house, an unfamiliar man loitering in an apartment house hallway or strange cars parked in residential neighborhoods is frustrating to officers trying to track down housebreakers, the chief explained.

Siddons Work Premiered

The world premiere of a specially commissioned work will be the highlight of the 38th annual Sawyer Concert to be presented Friday evening, April 22 in George Washington Hall, Phillips Academy, at 8:15 p.m.

The Fine Arts Woodwind Quintet will join with the Herb Pomeroy Jazz Quintet to perform "Double Quintet 1965" composed by Gerald Siddons, a graduate of Boston Conservatory who is now on the faculty of the Berklee School of Music.

This new composition was commissioned by the Cambridge Arts Ensembles to bring about more provocative concert programs integrating jazz and classical music.

Commenting on "Double Quintet 1965", Mr. Siddons said, "Too often composers write sectional pieces for jazz-classical combinations. First comes the classical introduction, then the jazz improvisation, or the classicists accompany the jazz men. I'm striving for a real fusion, though parts of the Double Quintet are sectional. . ."

In addition to the new composition, the Fine Arts Musicians will perform "Woodwind Quintet" by Elliott Carter and the "Quintet for Wind Instruments" by Walter Piston. The members of this classical group are Elinor Preble, flute; Richard Summers, oboe;

Felix Viscuglia, clarinet; Ralph Pottle, horn; and John Miller, bassoon.

The Herb Pomeroy Quintet will also present works by Miles Miyagi and Charlie Mariano, who writes much of the Quintet's music. In the jazz group, which appears on the Jazz Workshop in Boston on WGBH-TV, are Ray Fandrich, piano; John Neves, bass; Joe Hume, drums; Charlie Mariano, alto sax and flute; and Herb Pomeroy, trumpet.

The concert is open to the public without charge, but tickets should be picked up at the information desk at George Washington Hall reserved by calling the academy.

CD Course Is Offered

A Civil Defense training course for instructors will be offered by the Massachusetts Department of Education on April 20, 21 and 22, Carroll F. Towey, state CDAE coordinator, announced today. The eighteen hour course, which will train teachers for the Civil Defense Adult Education course "Personal and Family Survival", will be given at the Civil Defense Training Academy, Bradley Palmer State Park in Topsfield.

Instruction and materials are free of charge and classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Meals are available at the academy for a modest charge, and students may also reside at the Academy.

Upon completion of the course, students will be eligible to instruct in the "Personal and Family Survival" course for the Department of Education. Registration may be made by writing to the Massachusetts Department of Education, Civil Defense Adult Education, Suite 500, 25 Huntington Ave., Boston 02116.

at the morning worship service
Sunday.

The talent dollars were distributed by trustees on February 14.
Since then efforts to make them grow have led members to initiate such projects as monogramming, stitching, selling barbecue skewers, baking pies, and rolling making marmalade and Easter plants etc.

Funds raised will be used to install drainage facilities in the church parking lot. The total value of the talent dollars is reported to be $1,000. The afternoon meeting will be held at the lower parish hall after church Sunday.

Theodore Acosta To Head Ballardvale Association

Theodore Acosta, 27 Center St., was nominated for the post of president of the ailing Ballardvale Community Assn. at a Tuesday meeting.

Because there were no nominations from the floor, he and others on the slate are technically elected though the actual election is scheduled for the May meeting.

Also nominated were: Bruce Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Ralph Sharpe, secretary; Robert Driscoll, treasurer; building committee chairman, James Butler; co-chairman, program committee, Mrs. Wendell Mattheson and Mrs. George Nason; refreshment committee chairman, Mrs. Ray Marble.

About 35 people were at this week's meeting, an improvement in attendance. The year-old organization has been having growing pains and in recent weeks the group's leadership has blamed the slow progress with improvements to the community center building on public apathy. The town agreed last year to supply materials for refurbishing of the center if the residents of the Vale would provide the manpower.

Mrs. Sue Luby of Burlington was introduced to the Tuesday audience to explain a series of yoga classes which she will conduct at the center under sponsorship of the community association.

Attired in a black leotard, Mrs. Luby demonstrated several yoga positions and explained that the training she offers will help students develop a repertoire of non-strenuous exercises to improve appearance, posture and general physical well being.

The eight-week course will begin April 26 and is to be held Tuesday mornings. Information about fees and registration may be obtained from Mrs. Wendell Mattheson and Mrs. George Nason.

Wetland Use Rediscussed

Acreage Development Corp. presented revamped plans for development of contested land in a subdivision off River Road at a Planning Board hearing Monday.

The developer's original plans for portions of the area lying close by Fish Brook ran afoul of the state's new law for protection of wetlands.

Acreage Development has now redesigned the layout, eliminating five house lots and moving another 300 feet or so away from the swampy lands in question.

Conservationists at the hearing continued to object, but Water Supt. Donald C. Bassett told the board he had no objections to the new proposal. He said he felt Developer Jean Chalifour had made every effort to cooperate in replanning his project. Bassett opposed the original layout largely because he feared construction activity would lead to the settling of a fine, insoluble clay in Fish Brook, now being used as a source of water for the municipal water system.

The revised plans must be cleared by the Department of Natural Resources.

RABIES CLINIC

The final rabies vaccination clinic for dogs will be held Saturday, April 16, between 8:30 a.m. and 12 noon, in the Andover Junior High School shop area.

Dr. Richard Lindsay will be in charge.
